Championing Early-Stage Bio-Entrepreneurs

Boehringer Ingelheim knows what it takes to be innovative and entrepreneurial. From the small factory in 1885 to today's multi-billion-dollar global organization, we know how important it is to nurture and develop young science and technology businesses.

Our personalized Boehringer Ingelheim Office Hours initiative is designed to support the next generation of biotech start-ups and entrepreneurs.

A Pioneering Mentoring Initiative

Boehringer Ingelheim Office Hours offers small companies and entrepreneurs individual attention in an informal 'office hours' atmosphere. Designed as a consultative 'round table' meeting, this pioneering mentoring initiative 'lifts the lid' on how big pharma works and provides access to expertise, an industry perspective and feedback to emerging life-science businesses.

Access to expertise:

- Research & preclinical development
- Biology & Chemistry
- Medicine (Clinical development)
- Pipeline management & marketing
- Business development

How Boehringer Ingelheim Office Hours Works

In advance of your personalized one-hour session, participants are invited to submit some non-confidential background information about their technology and up to five questions regarding their programs and company. This helps us get a better understanding of your company so we can answer your questions more effectively. Senior professionals from Boehringer Ingelheim will tailor a brainstorming session to focus on your company's interests, and address topics such as pre-clinical and clinical development, research strategy, business development and commercial potential.
